Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claim 1, 2, 5, 6, 7, 11 and 33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Markowitz et al #5601615.

3. The pacemaker stores and telemetries out the data to “the means to define the capture threshold. “

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 3, 4, 8-10, 12-18, 22-29, 30-32 and 34-39 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Markowitz et al #5601615 in view of Levine et al #6129746.

3. Markowitz et al discloses a threshold seeking pacemaker that operates by loading a user provided A-V delay setting; delivering a pulse; verifying capture and defining a threshold. Not disclosed by this reference is adjusting the frequency the threshold tests are performed. Levine et al teaches adjusting the frequency the threshold tests are performed based on the variance of the data. The reference also notes that the test should be performed when the system becomes unstable. (column 5, Lines 1+) Given this teaching it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to run the threshold test in Markowitz et al's device based on the variance of the data.

4. Claims 19-21, rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Levine et al #6129746.

Levine et al teaches adjusting the frequency the threshold tests are performed based on the variance of the data. The reference also notes that the test should be performed when the system becomes unstable. Therefore the step of determining the stability of the system would be provided for. The reference also notes that the data can be stored for later analysis in a clinical setting therefore the visual display would be provided for.

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
